THE CITIZEN

T. G. PASCO,
EDITOR AND MANAGER.

Published at the office of

THE CITIZEN, Berea, Ky.

The Day of Prayer for Colleges was observed here last Sunday, Jan. 28, instead of Thursday, Jan. 26, as is customary elsewhere, and as Berea College has done until this year. About ten days ago the notice of the change was given, and it was not a pleasant surprise to our students. The majority of the students, we believe, favor the old plan, not because it entailed a holiday, but because it was an index of the spiritual life of the student body. The reason for changing has not yet been given satisfactorily. Some of the members of the Faculty have given various reasons, one saying it was because the students take no interest in that Day and so it was decided to have services on Sunday instead of on the usual day. "Besides," said this one, "we do not feel that we can afford to give another holiday this term after giving you two already." But we are glad to know this is not the official sentiment of the Faculty. Yet such expressions of opinion on the part of one member easily give rise to the expression heard from one student, that "the Faculty would rather have us study than pray." While this is not the voice of a majority of the students, we are confident, yet it indicates the view that some take of the matter and is in itself a strong reason why such expressions as the one made by one of the teachers should be avoided. For, if it is believed that some students are disinterested, that is the great reason why those students should realize the value put upon a special Day of Prayer, by those who do enjoy such a day.

The reason which has come to be generally believed to be the official one is that the school could not spare another holiday now, as two had been given already this term and as another is coming. This is a dangerous precedent. To the better element of the students the Day of Prayer is not a holiday but is a special day set apart for a serious purpose and not to be abused. If this better class of students feel the change to Sunday is to be regretted, because of the desire to keep unchanged the memories of that day, surely the Faculty can not afford to expose themselves to the criticism already referred to above.

Another reason, Sunday is a day for rest and special services different from those commonly coming on week-days. It is too often the case that Sunday is crowded full of extras which make it the hardest day of the week for the student. This should be avoided as far as possible, for the overcrowding results, oftentimes as it did last Sunday—students do not attend, in any considerable number, the special meetings. For example out of nine students, taken at random, one attended the afternoon meeting and two the one at night. Yet they are not the careless students, but are those who would, in all probability, have attended like services held on Thursday. Such students always have done so before this, why not this year?

Now these lines are not written simply for idle criticism, nor to show up faults and mistakes in others, but to urge that, in future, the opinions of prominent students be consulted upon such matters before such radical steps are taken.

The Wide World.

Ladysmith is left besieged by the Boers, without hope of rescue until General Roberts finishes his plan for the campaign.

China is now the scene of operations by several of the Powers which have sent ships there to protect their interests.

In election of Senators in France the general complexion of the Senate was not changed, the Nationalists being turned down.

The retreat of Gen. Buller's whole army across the Tugela River in S. Africa gives up to the Boers all he had gained in a week of hard fights.

State and County.

Circuit court adjourned yesterday. Jesse Maupin, 80, died near Whites, last Sunday.

Smallpox is reported at College Hill, and new cases at Richmond.

Kentucky shipped 2,151,190 pounds of turkey during last Thanksgiving and Christmas.

E. M. Embury, of Richmond, has started a paper in the interest of the colored people. It is a monthly, the Rambler.

The rumor spread yesterday, just as we went to press, that Senator Goebel had been killed that morning, by some unknown person or persons. Such acts bring Kentucky into ill-repute as a peaceable state.

The Rubber-tired Buggy.

In a rubber-tired buggy
He arose straight thro' my heart
In a new and shining buggy,
Complete in every part.
He wore a broad-brimmed Stetson,
And he drove a bay road-mare
To that rubber-tired buggy,
In a way devoid of care.

He lived among the bluegrass,
Where the hard smooth pikes are white,
You can see them stretching ghostly,
On the darkest moonless night.
And sometimes, in my fancy,
I can almost smell it yet,
The fragrant, pungent odor
Of his home made cigarette.

O, that rubber-tired buggy,
And the sound of the mare's feet,
As they traveled on like clock-work,
With a steady, even heat.
O, the soft rush of the night-wind
Past our faces as we whirled
Down the white pikes of God's country
In a careless, happy world.

O, gay and happy sweetheart,
Dashing, reckless, debonair,
O, rubber-tired buggy,
And gallant little mare,
Back in the land of dollars,
I never can forget
Those days in old Kentucky—
Dreamed of, thought of, cherished yet.

O, "dark and bloody" country,
You were bright and fair to me!
O, land of knobs and bluegrass—
Of hand and heart so free.
O, land of feuds and biscuit,
Of whisky, fox-hunts, pinck—
I'm eating light bread in the North,
But my heart's in old Kentucky!

We are prepared to cloth you with the Lowest-priced, rightly made, absolutely all-wool clothing in America. The fabrics that we show are the very newest designs that will be seen this season. Many confined exclusively to us, in the face of the above facts. The most extraordinary feature combining our great offer is, that we can and do sell our clothing at

Than elsewhere. How can we afford to sell such high-grade clothing for less money than elsewhere? Our answer is pure and simple. Ours is a modern store, constructed strictly on progressive plans, our clothing is sold on the smallest margin of profit, depending on a large volume of business. The more clothing we sell, the greater our purchasing power the lower our prices, that's the story in a nut-shell.

COVINGTON & MITCHELL

RICHMOND - - KENTUCKY

The interior of the Madison National Bank at Richmond has been beautified by some extensive repairs.

The item in last week's CITIZEN concerning the L. & N. earnings should have read that the road earned $19,000 in Berea in 1899. As it was the item was somewhat indifferent.

A. J. Elder recently plotted what is known as Elder's addition to Berea, E. W. Todd doing the surveying and plotting. Mr. Elder has laid off lots in good shape, staking out streets and alleys and his land is now on the market. Several of the outside lots have been sold already.

Services especially commemorating the Day of Prayer for Colleges were held last Sunday at 3 P. M. and 7 P. M. The service in the afternoon was conducted by Rev. James W. Rain, of Dayton, O., who gave a thoughtful address. In the evening Mrs. Teeters led a students' experience and testimony meeting which proved interesting and helpful. Rev. Mr. Rain delivered the morning sermon at the Chapel, urging upon all the necessity of having some fixed belief, the result of experience, about the great truths of Christianity.

The Kentucky Colonels, a male quartet well known in Richmond and neighboring towns to the north of that will give a concert in the Masonic Temple at Richmond, to-morrow night, Feb. 1. Mr. A. D. Flora, the bass, is well known in business circles in Madison county, as he was formerly proprietor of a monument establishment, at Richmond, before he joined the Colonels five years ago. Press notices all unite in praising the Colonels and any of our citizens who can go are assured of a very pleasant evening. Parties from Berea wishing to go will please notify the editor of the CITIZEN who has tickets here, and who will make all necessary arrangements for conveyance, reserving seats, etc. if he is notified by nine o'clock to-morrow morning. Cost per person, $1.00, including round trip to Richmond and reserved seat.

Tuesday evening, Jan. 23, Rev. James W. Rain, of Dayton, O., delivered the second entertainment of the Lyceum Course, his subject being: "Lights and Shadows of American Life." As is quite likely to happen, Mr. Rain did not say anything about his subject but gave miscellaneous readings from various works, the Scotch dialect being prominent. Rev. Rain is a master of this style, as is natural, he being a native born Scotchman and an American simply "by marriage." Many of the readings were familiar to part of the audience at least, but the lecturer's superior rendering of even the familiar ones is worthy of mention. New interpretation was given, and this had the effect of making an interesting and instructive program.

A Letter from Rile.

DEAR CITIZEN:

A long time ago me 'n' Ike Jackson got to swappin' ideas, one day—(he's a neighbor of mine)—an he said:

"Luck Combs' boy is aimin' to go off to college. He'll play smash."

"Dye reckon so?" I said.

"Uh-hu; he'd better be a-makin' a livin' stid o' killin' time at school. His pap gives 'im fifty acres o' land an' he sold hit back fur $100 to go to school on. My notion is, the feller who chops an' grubbs is the one who'll git thar. I let my boy, Mat, have a piece o' land an' he's clearin' like forty. The way he'll git ahead o' Combs' boy will make your head swim."

"Not much," I said, fer hit wuz my turn. "Not meanin' no insult to you, Ike, I think hit's jist t'other way. Combs' chap 'll git thar Eli."

"I can't see how, Rile."

"Jist wait an' see if I ain't right. You'd better send Mat too. A feller that ain't educated can't run a farm right, an' the time's comin' when he won't stand no chance. Me an' you missed hit right thar. Mat 'll marry afore he's twenty, live away up some little holler an' work like a mule in a log wagon, ef he makes a good livin'."

Work's alright, but a feller ort to know somethin' else."

"I'll resk Mat a-makin' bread an' meat."

I jist let Ike have his way, an' that boy o' his cleared a whole, steep hill-side. He put it all in corn an' the weeds come in a p o' takin' hit. Mat married shore nuff an' is livin on Ingern-Hatch Branch an' lookin' like a groun'-hog. His wife an' children git all the stove-wood, an' he fools around a heap with an' old gun. His hill-side 'most all slid off to the bottom an' what's left is too poor to sprout peas.

That Combs feller went to school a long time an' got back lookin' like a lawyer, or congressman. He's got a good farm down the vally an' fetched in a wife a year ago. He's one o' the smartest, best-thought-of men on Powder-horn, Blue-hole, or any creek in the county.

You CITIZEN folks mustn't think I'm a-tellin' this for devilment. Aint no joke about hit outside o' the fun I had out o' Ike. He said to me, one day:

"You're the long headedest man in this 'ere brush, Rile. Who'd 'a' thought you wuz right about Mat an' Combs?"

"Shucks! A man with one eye an' half-sense could 'a' seen that," I said an' Ike looked like he'd let a bird go.

Yours Verash'usly,

RILEY RUGGLES.
